Anyone, of any age, is eligible for a foot/lower leg assessment

Podiatrists are trained to assess and treat any problem of the foot, ankle and lower leg.

What happens after you send your referral form in

Your form will be checked by a senior podiatrist, this means that the podiatrist will assess whether your problem is urgent or not, and whether you need to be seen by a specialist podiatrist. This is why you should give as much detail about your problem as possible.

If your problem is assessed as urgent, a member of staff will contact you to offer the first available appointment. This may not be at the clinic that you have selected.

Non urgent referrals are sorted into areas, and you will be contacted when assessment clinics are available at your chosen clinic. If you have requested a home visit a podiatrist will probably contact you and your GP to confirm the need for this. Please note that it is always better to be treated in a clinic where all the relevant equipment is at hand, particularly a bright light and proper chairs.

What you can expect from your first appointment

All NHS podiatrists are registered with the Health Professions Council (HPC), and are required by law to carry out a thorough medical history and assessment of your feet before carrying out any treatment. This will include asking about previous medical problems and skin/nail disorders.

The podiatrist may also test for sensation, vascular problems and joint movement, depending on your foot problem.

The appointment will last about half an hour. The podiatrist will assess the problem and discuss possible treatment options with you.

The options may include:

- Advice on how you or your carer can manage your own foot care, including advice on suitable footwear.
- Offer a course of treatment.
- Refer you to a specialist podiatrist, depending on your foot problem.
- You may receive treatment at assessment if this is appropriate, but this is not always possible or advisable. If further treatment is necessary the podiatrist will arrange another appointment.
- You will be discharged at completion of your course of treatment. In some cases this may be on your first visit.

What you should bring to your first appointment

- Your appointment letter/card
- A list of your current medicine/tablets
- A selection of your shoes, including slippers
